

ABSTRACT: A device that can pressurize an existing enclosed space with clean, breathable air such that the increased pressure in the room prevents contaminated air from the external environment from entering the room and injuring its occupants. The device consists of a filter module (46), an insert assembly (45), an air flow conduit (48), and a fan (49).